Watts Water Technologies One of Five Companies to Incorporate New Lead Sensor Technology into Products

For Dr. Chung Hoon Lee, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering, involvement in Milwaukee's Water Equipment and Policy Center has been a boon. With feedback from industry partners, Lee developed a waterborne lead sensor that continuously monitors water for heavy metal contaminants without contacting it, thereby limiting corrosion and the sensor failures that result from it.

Plumbers Tips- How an Automatic Water Shut-Off Valve could have Helped

The force that can carve out the Grand Canyon can also carve out massive damage to your home. How can we protect our homes from this great force of nature? Knowledge and preparation are critical.

The good news is that 93% of water leaks can be prevented. Utilizing well-placed water leak detectors that are connected to a water shutoff valve can help prevent catastrophic water damage.

7 Bathroom Design Trends Going Away In 2023

The bathroom is one of the most important rooms in the home. Not only is it a sanctuary, but it's also a space where the right design choice can add value. 2022 was a unique year for bathroom trends because it didn't appear that there was anything majorly new, innovative, or must-have. Rather, homeowners were simply thrilled to be able to finish projects that were delayed due to Covid and supply chain issues. However, many who are currently beginning renovation projects are tired of what's been popular in recent years and looking forward to new emerging trends.

Whether you're renovating your bathroom or just doing a quick refresh, here are seven bathroom design trends going away in 2023.
